The EFL Journal: An International Journal of Interdisciplinary Studies is a biannual (January-July) double-blind, peer-reviewed international journal published by The English and Foreign Languages University, founded on the legacy of its predecessors, the CIE Bulletin, the CIEFL Bulletin, and The Journal of English and Foreign Languages. Regrettably, the journal's publication was briefly interrupted during the COVID-19 pandemic. Its resurgence now in its reconceived avatar in the post-COVID context signals a renewed engagement with contemporary debates and evolving directions in global intellectual thought. Amid the accelerating reorientations in contemporary epistemological and discursive thought toward the 'interdisciplinary', 'multidisciplinary' and 'transdisciplinary', The EFL Journal reasserts its commitment to cultivating rigorous and innovative scholarship that transcends conventional disciplinary boundaries.

The EFL Journal publishes original research papers in English in the following disciplines:

The English and Foreign Languages University, Hyderabad, was founded in 1958 as the Central Institute of English (CIE), "a premier institute of language", by the first Prime Minister of India, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, to facilitate exclusive studies and research of the English language. In 1972, with the introduction of foreign languages into its teaching mandate, the institute was renamed the Central Institute of English and Foreign Languages (CIEFL) and, within a year, was conferred with the status of a Deemed University. In 2006, the Institute was accorded the status of a Central University and renamed The English and Foreign Languages University. The university offers academic instruction in English, Hindi, Arabic, Chinese, French, German, Spanish, Italian, Russian, Japanese, Korean, Persian, and Turkish, distinguishing itself as the only institution of its kind in South Asia. The university maintains regional campuses in Lucknow and Shillong.
